MATTAPOISETT TOWN WHARF~RAILWAY

Welcome back to your summer home. We hope that you will enjoy receiving your Mattapoisett Presto Press and that it will cut down on your shopping time and let you spend more time on the beach. This paper is sent to you free of charge by our advertisers. They are a fine group of merchants, offering excellent values, and we know that you will enjoy doing business with them. If you have a post office box or a RFD box you will receive the paper after you notify the Post Office that you are in town. Our news coupon is located on page 14 please use it to send us news about your neighborhood. The news does not have to be of earth shaking importance; we leave the atom bombs to the more important papers. We are interested in PEOPLE - Mattapoisett People and what they are doing. Leave the coupon with any one of our advertisers. If you do not have a Post Office Box and depend on General delivery stop at the Völkommen Card shop for your paper,as the Post Office will not give them out on General Delivery. We want every Mattapoisett family to enjoy a Presto

MANY CALLS RECEIVED AT POLICE CENTER

At a recent town meeting, Police Chief Alden Kinney expressed his views on the need of a police station and the acceptance by town meeting voters has established one in the Town Hall. It might interest you to know what his home must have been like when all the calls came in there.

For the week ending Saturday, June 26th at 9 A. M. over seventy-five calls had been received onthe phone exclusive of the personal contacts cared for.

One ambulance case transferred Edgar Fuller from St. Lukes Hospital to his home. On June 21st the ambulance took Roland C. Shaw of Church St. to St Lukes Hospital.

Much has been said about inefficiency, but let's give credit where credit is due. A case of hit and run driving which occured on Water St. recently was settled in court at Middleboro, with conviction and heavy fining of Hermano Carvalho of

You must fertilize regularly if you want...

. . . a weed free lawn

Regular fertilizing will help you to have that weed free lawn every home owner wants but seldom is able to achieve. Grass is hardy and aggressive when well nourished and if supplied with enough fertilizer it will crowd out all weeds. If not, the weeds will take the nourishment and leave the grass with none.

FERTIL-ADE is applied by our trucks and applicators in the exact proportion necessary for proper nourishment of your lawn, garden, trees and shrubs.
You merely specify the areas to be treated; our applicators will treat those areas with the correct formulation of FERTIL-ADE and at the specified intervals.

It is not necessary for you to be at home when applications are made. Once the contract is established, the periodic fertilization of your lawn and garden is scheduled into our regular routes. FERTIL-ADE treatments are made regularly as required and are not subject to your free time. Your lawn is automatically fertilized.

MATTAPOISETT MAN CARRIED SPARS FOR LAGODA

Last week a gentleman by the name of Frank A. Denham stopped at the Presto office with a coupon to try for the prize of the week and a news story we think is choice.

With distinct pride, yet with reserve, he was letting us impart to all of you, the fact that onaa winter's day he was privileged to be the driver of a team of horses drawing two sleds, aboard which were the sticks for the Lagoda. At the time he worked for Mr. Everett Stetson, a sawmill owner on North St. He was delivering the bowsprit, two masts and a top mast to a Mr. Howland at Merrell's Wharf in New Bedford. Here, they were worked and fitted for the Lagoda which is now on display as a half size model whaling ship at the Old Dartmouth Historical Society on Johnny Cake Hill in New Bedford, Mass.

We naturally got to chatting and as always an interesting fact came to light. You perhaps remember a roller coaster on Martha's Vineyard.

We naturally got to chatting and as always an interesting fact came to light. A roller coaster on Martha's Vineyard, that you might remember, failed to make a profit and it was dismantled. The big timber was laced together and floated across the Bay to our shores and used as the understructure for the present Big 3 sawmill. They were wonderful pine sticks of large proportions and are still doing good service for the present operator, Ted Walega.

SOME THOUGHTS OF MINE
MATTAPOISETT "PLACE OF REST"
by Murray R. Tuttle

In dear old Mattapoisett, where the Red Man used to dwell
And every path throughout the place, the Red Man knew so well.
That he could travel day or night, no matter what the reason.
With bow and arrow at his side, it mattered not the season.

His house a wigwam made of hides, he got his living from the tides.
His life was free to come and go, he never had to make a show of what he had or what he got, his clothes were little but a spot.
He roamed at will without a care, he had no bed, nor yet a chair.

King Phillip used to stop and rest his warriors on their trip
At a spring north of the center, where the water pure did drip.
From Plymouth to Fall River he would take his men of old
To a consul of the Chiefs when he'd figured he'd been sold.

The people lived a life of ease, upon the ground among the trees
They got their meat with bow and arrow, and skinned it with a stone.
And feasted while it lasted, then off again did roam.
The women did the heavy work, the men need not stay home.

When trouble came with other Tribes they fought their best to win
And then the white men came along, the Indian to trim.
They fought to save their families, their Homeland and their friends
Nor did they stop to reason, that would surely be their end.

And so the Redmen passed away, here never more to roam
For the white men came in numbers the place to make their home
The white men had the cannon, and the big old flint lock gun
And laid to waste the Redmen's homes and so they had to run.

The town at first grew slowly, a cabin here and there
And then some houses did appear, both beautiful and square
With shipyards round about the coast where men toiled night and day
And whaling ships slid down the ways that took the men away.

And many a man went whaling throughout the mighty deep
To every point of the compass, where many a man still sleeps
For many "Good-byes" were said when the whalemen left their home
Never to return to loved ones, they had passed away alone.

And the men and women of long ago served the Country in its stride
To win its freedom from slavery, and many gave their lives.
And so on through the ages the boys and girls from here
Have served their Country with Honor without a thought of fear.

The town was full of Captains as well as seamen bold
And the yarns they used to tell us would make our blood run cold.
But we were eager to hear um, bout the ice so high and deep,
And many a story they told us that kept us from going to sleep

Bout how the whales would thrash about and make the water foam
When the harpoon landed as it should and fastened to the bone
And the way they'd travel, when the whale began to run.
And the line it took when it sounded as though twas shot from a gun

But ships and men of those old days have passed along the way
Like every earthly thing of life when it has had its stay.
We cannot linger here for long, or so the poets say;
But those folks left an Anchorage, to which we're tied today.

And dear old Mattapoisett, not the same as long ago,
Gets dearer to her people, the older as they grow.
There's something mighty homelike in this
dear old place
One always feels a welcome when he sees a townsman's face.

And so the Town has greatly grown, from end to end there building
And she's grown broader in the beam, the schools are full of children.
There's Peases Point and Crescent Beach, which in the days of old T'was but a farm and pasture land, many houses now do hold.

Antassawomack Neck's a place that once was quite forlorn
Where I used to plant potatoes, cabbages and corn.
Now has some pretty dwellings where people
come to stay
And pass a happy summer and they hate to go away.

The old lighthouse to the eastward tells the sailor where to row
And another boat yard flourishes as they did so long ago
And so from many places people have come to stay
In dear old Mattapoisett as they pass along life's way.

It's changed in many ways from what it used to be
For its men have found employment elsewhere than the sea.
The Home'ness of this grand old town has gone around the Globe
For its sons and daughters young and old,
its History have told.

SOME THOUGHTS OF MINE Continued from Page 18

So I love old Mattapoisett, it's where I love to roam
There's no place in the World that could have the feel of Home
Like dear old Mattapoisett, resting by the sea
As long as I am living, here's where I want
BARK GAY HEAD to be.

Treasures in and around Mattapoisett are so numerous that if they could be accumulated, we would have a nuseum that would surprise you.

A painting of the Bark Gay Head now hanging in the dining room of Mrs. Lester Jenney, Church St. is such a treasure.

Pretty in her lines as any yacht that ever sailed with majestic graceful bowsprits distinctive of her type. She was a ship of 252 tons built by Jonathan Holmes in 1877. Her first Captain on her maiden voyage was Captain Joseph R. Jenney.

Vast changes in speed of communication are illustrated by the wreck of this beauty on the shores of Chignik Bay, Alaska on October 6, 1913. News of the disaster was received by her owners here July 2, 1914. Just think nine months of anxiety for the home folks to know all on board were saved.

Why only this morning at the police telephone center, the communication audio was crisply relaying messages from distances nearly as great in a matter of minutes.

They were truly the good old days. Would you like to relive them except in memories?

THE POTTERS WHEEL is known to have existed in Egypt from the beginning of recorded history, and in China and Europe it dates back to at least 2000 B. C.

A hand-thrown pot is made with wet and pliable clay which is thrown upon a revolving wheel. The potter then shapes and draws up the clay with his trained and sensitive hands until it reaches a desired form.

Pottery, along with many other of the old crafts, has been streamlined and factory produced to meet modern commercial demands, and much of our contemporary ceramics is made in molds. However, here and there one finds a potter who uses the old wheel as an art form to turn out individual and distinctive pottery.

While in Mattapoisett drop in for a visit with Harry Yerkes. He will be glad to welcome you and demonstrate at the potters wheel this oldest of crafts.
